

1 day jewellery design workshops & artists talk Loose Junior School, Kent.

Aim: To work with a group of year 3 students to give them an insight to being a jewellery maker and working to commission.

I worked as a Jewellery tutor and visiting artist with the year 3 students at Loose Junior School in Kent.

After giving a presentation about my work and the jewellery industry I worked with the groups to decide upon a client and consider their likes and dislikes to help them create a suitable piece of jewellery.

The research and design process were recorded on mood boards.

Pupils were supported in making their designs a reality and finishing their jewellery securely.

Aims were met and the feedback was very positive from the whole year. The creations were displayed together at the end of the session for a 'show and tell'.
